

Gravesiana* to Undergo a Change in Submission Policies

To date, Patrick Quinn and I have been managing to produce the journal with the great assistance of our editorial board. However, pressing schedules have often demanded that we make decisions with regard to the content of the journal without consulting our board as fully as we would have liked.

In order to be fully recognised as a refereed journal we are formalising what has been, thus far, a rather ad hoc policy.

To correspond with our first special issue (see call for papers below) we ask that contributions be sent by January 31, 1998.

In the future, all contributions must be received six months prior to the proposed publication date.

Every contribution, if recommended for publication by the editorial board, will be sent to TWO external readers for commentary.

Revisions must be finalised two months prior to the publication date.
